Ready, Vet, Go Celebrates 200th Mentee as October Veterinary Mentorship Cohort Sells Out

Program growth fueled by corporate partnerships, independent practices, and industry-leading guest speakers

OAKLAND, CA — October 1, 2025 — Ready, Vet, Go, a rapidly growing mentorship program for new and early-career veterinarians, today announced that its October cohort has officially sold out, marking a major milestone: the program's 200th mentee.

The sold-out enrollment reflects a surge of interest from both corporate and independent practices. This cohort includes partnerships with Vetcor (with scholarships generously sponsored by Hill's Pet Nutrition), BondVet, and Heartland Veterinary Partners, both supported by Boehringer Ingelheim, as well as numerous independent hospitals across the country. The October cohort also features a scholarship recipient from the Diversity Veterinary Medical Coalition (DVMC), reflecting Ready, Vet, Go's commitment to equity and inclusion in veterinary mentorship.

"Part of what fuels our growth is that we lead with a spirit of joy and community," said Dr. Dani Rabwin, founder of Ready, Vet, Go. "Our mentors are experienced veterinarians who love what they do and bring positivity to the profession. There are plenty of voices of negativity out there - but that's not us. We offer practical, encouraging tools for thriving in veterinary medicine, and that message is resonating with new graduates and their practices."

Mentees in the October cohort will have access to exclusive guest sessions with renowned leaders including:

- Dr. Azalia Boyd, veterinarian, educator, and consultant (drazaliaboyd.com)

- Andrea Crabtree, CVPM, owner of FurPaws Consulting (furpawsconsulting.com)
- Dr. Briana Armstrong, Co-Owner Firehouse Animal Health Center (firehouse183.com)
- Dr. Melanie Goble, RVG mentor and co-founder of Not One More Vet
- Melyssa Allen, lifestyle medicine coach (<https://healthylivingdoesnthavetosuck.com/>)
- Dr. Ryan Koopmans, veterinarian and CFP (veterinarianfinancialadvisor.network)

In addition, Ready, Vet, Go's dedicated mentor team combines experienced returning mentors - Dr. Eddie Robinson, Dr. Melanie Goble, and Dr. Jeff Klemens - with new mentors joining this cohort: Dr. Julie Gamble, Dr. George Cuellar, and Dr. Glenn Kalick (readyvetgo.co/our-team).

With enrollment demand at an all-time high, Ready, Vet, Go is preparing for its next cohort launch in 2026. Practices and individuals can learn more and join the waitlist at readyvetgo.co.

About Ready, Vet, Go

Ready, Vet, Go is a remote mentorship program and professional community helping veterinarians thrive in their early careers. Founded by Dr. Dani Rabwin, RVG connects new graduates with experienced mentors, small-group learning, and expert guest speakers, while also fostering resilience, confidence, and community in veterinary medicine. By complementing the mentorship provided in clinics, RVG helps reduce new graduate turnover and strengthen bonds between veterinarians and their practices. In addition to the structured mentorship program, RVG reaches more than 10,000 veterinarians through its RACE-approved webinars, private networking platform, and online community.
